The airline has applied for a tax offset of $54.7 million for its new venture, an international charter airline based in southern Queensland. The amount is equal to 40 per cent of the money it intends to raise through the sale of a block of shares in the company to a group of US investors. If granted, it would be the first government-backed tax offset in Australia's history. In its federal budget on Tuesday Treasurer Wayne Swan signalled the government had money available to offset the $20 million loss Qantas took in the 2011-12 financial year. Qantas spokesman Michael Blythe said the loss of about $20 million was the airline's worst in five years and now it had "a strong business proposition on the table".Media playback is unsupported on
